

Customer FAQ:

Do I need to RSVP for your sale?

No, our estate sales are open to the public.

Can I bring my purse to the estate sale?

No, it is company policy that only wallets and small clutches be permitted inside. Due to security protocol purses/handbags are not allowed inside.

How do I find out about your next estate sale?

Visit our mailing list tab on this website, where you can input your email address and we will notify you of upcoming estate sales, via email.

Do you charge tax at the estate sales?

Yes, as a business we are required to charge sales tax on all purchases. Unless, you have a valid Texas resale license. If so, please submit your resale information on this website, so you are on file with our company. Once you are on file as a reseller, you will not be charged sales tax.

What are the days and hours of the estate sales?

Our estate sales are conducted throughout the course of three days (Thursday, Friday, Saturday), between the hours of 9am-2pm daily.

Do you offer moving services for items I purchase at the estate sale?

No, Blissfully Organized, LLC does not move items. However, we can refer you to a number of independent local movers—who can provide bids for your specific needs.

How long do I have to remove my purchased items from the estate sale home?

You can come and pick up purchased items at any time during the estate sale. Or, we also offer a pickup window between 10am-2pm the Monday immediately following the estate sale.

What forms of payment do you accept?

We accept cash, all major credit cards, venmo, cash app

What are the rules & terms of your estate sale?

All sales are final. Enter the home at your own risk. Blissfully Organized, LLC is not responsible for accidents. Be kind and courteous to other shoppers.

Do you allow refunds or exchanges?

Like most estate sales, ALL SALES ARE FINAL - so be sure you really love an item before you purchase it!
